

RATIFY TREATY OF PEACE

THE COUNTRY NEEDS AN END OF WAR CONDITIONS.

People and Business Suffer While Senators Talk—Let the Talk End and Treaty be Adopted.

President Wilson suggested when he gave the treaty to the Senate that he would appear before the Foreign Relations Committee whenever wanted. That body with an unusual number of men of small and feeble vision have wasted weeks pretending they were not going to do what the President had suggested. On Tuesday this committee met with the President. The occasion was marked by the following address of the President:

"I am sincerely glad that the committee should have responded in this way to my intimation that I would like to be of service to it. I welcome the opportunity for a frank and full interchange of views.

"I hope, too, that this conference will serve to expedite your consideration of the treaty of peace. I beg that you will pardon and indulge me if I again urge that practically the whole task of bringing the country back to normal conditions of life and industry waits upon the decision of the Senate with regard to the terms of the peace.

"I venture thus again to urge my advice that the action of the Senate with regard to the treaty be taken at the earliest practicable moment because the problems with which we are face to face in the readjustment of our national life are of the most pressing and critical character, will require for their proper solution the most intimate and disinterested co-operation of all parties and all interests, and cannot be postponed without manifest peril to our people and to all the national advantages we hold most dear.

"May I mention a few of the matters which cannot be handled with intelligence until the country knows the character of the peace it is to have? I do so only by a very few examples.

"The copper mines of Arizona, Montana and Alaska, for example, are being kept open and in operation at a great cost and loss, in part upon borrowed money; the zinc mines of Missouri, Tennessee and Wisconsin are being operated at about one-half their capacity; the lead of Idaho, Illinois and Missouri reaches only a portion of its former market; there is an immediate need for cotton belting and also for lubricating oil which cannot be met—all because the channels of trade are barred by war, when there is no war.

Cotton Affected.

"The same is true of raw cotton of which the central empires alone formerly purchased nearly four million bales. And these are only examples. There is hardly a single raw material, a single important foodstuff or a single class of manufactured goods which is not in the same case. Our full, normal, profitable production waits on peace.

"Our military plans, of course, wait upon it. We cannot intelligently or wisely decide how large a naval or military force we shall maintain or what our policy with regard to military training is to be until we have peace, not only, but also until we know how peace is to be sustained, whether by the arms of single nations or by the concert of all the great peoples. And there is more than that of difficulty involved. The vast surplus properties of the army include, not food and clothing merely, whose sale will affect normal production, but great manufacturing establishments also, which should be restored to their former uses, great stores of machine tools and all sorts of merchandise which must be idle until peace and military policy are definitely determined. By the same token there can be no properly studied national budget until then.

No Competition in Markets.

"The nations that ratify the treaty, such as Great Britain, Belgium and France, will be in a position to lay their plans for control of the markets of Central Europe without competition from us if we do not presently act. We have no consular acts, no trade representatives there to look after our interests.

"There are large areas of Europe whose future will lie uncertain and questionable until their people know the final settlements of peace, and the forces which are to administer and sustain it.

"Without determinate markets our production can not proceed with intelligence or confidence. There can be no stabilization of wages because there can be no settled conditions of employment. There can be no easy nor normal industrial credits because there can be no confident or permanent revival of business.

"But I will not weary you with obvious examples. I only venture to repeat that every element of normal life among nations depends upon and awaits the ratification of the treaty of peace; and also that we cannot afford to lose a single summer's day by not doing all that we can to mitigate the winter's suffering, which unless we find means to prevent it may prove disastrous to a large portion of the world and may, at its worst, bring upon Europe conditions even more terrible than those wrought by the war itself.

UNITED STATES CONVOY

Stop Over Sunday in Gettysburg and Give Flying Exhibition.

The All-American Pathfinder Aviation Recruiting Unit making a trans-Atlantic tour from Mineola, Long Island, to San Francisco, arrived in Gettysburg last Saturday evening and went into camp here over Sunday, leaving Monday morning. The organization consisted of 23 officers and 90 enlisted men and were equipped with complete machine shop on a truck, a photographic lorry, seven balloons carried on trucks, largest and most powerful searchlight, motor trucks, trailers, rolling kitchens and other apparatus. They went into camp on field used by Camp Colt.

Shortly after the arrival of the convoy First Lieutenant M. H. Boggs, accompanied by Sergeant Matos, arrived in a Curtiss aeroplane. Other aeroplanes were expected to arrive to accompany the convoy, but the bad weather prevented them from joining the party at Gettysburg.

The tour had several purposes in view, not only the experience and demonstration but as a recruiting unit for all branches of the military service.

The unit was accompanied by Major Brown of the General Headquarters of the American Red Cross. Sunday noon the Gettysburg Red Cross Canteen gave the officers and men a dinner in St. James dining room. The commander expressed the greatest delight with the hospitality here and declared that the pace set by Gettysburg would make a most delightful journey to the west. After the dinner a number of automobiles took the party over the battlefield.

On Monday Lieutenant Boggs gave our people a demonstration of all kinds of flying with thrilling stunts, and later the battlefield was photographed from the air. The convoy took up its western journey Monday morning.

McIlhenny-King Reunion.

The McIlhenny-King ninth annual reunion at the Great Conewago Presbyterian Church at Hunterstown on Wednesday of this week was the largest attended meeting of the families, over 200 being present, and was marked by the appearance of the McIlhenny-King History, a cloth bound book of 150 pages, with illustrations of the McIlhenny and King Homesteads, of the church and of the officers of the association since its organization, Wm. A. McIlhenny, President, and Miss Annie Major, Secretary. The book is the work of the Compiler Print Shop, the compiling of the McIlhenny family history being done by Prof. J. A. Himes and for the King family history by Wm. Arch. McClean. The book will retail at $1.50 a copy.

After a sumptuous luncheon there were talks by Victor King McIlhenny, an attorney of New York City, Prof. Unger, supervising principal of the Westminster schools, Wm. Arch. McClean, Rev. Henry A. Riddle and Rev. J. Martin Linton, of Philadelphia, George McIlhenny, of Philadelphia, George McIlhenny, of Harrisburg, and Robert Gordon, of Waynesboro.

Hunting Club Picnic Well Attended.

The annual picnic of the Marsh Creek Hunting Club which was held on Tuesday at Sharrh's Grove above Cashtown, proved a most successful affair. There were twenty-two members of the Club present and with the members of their families and a number of friends seventy-five people were entertained. There was plenty of target shooting for the marksmen from rolling kegs and running "deer" to clay birds. In the latter contest Ralph Deatrick of Baltimore street won the bronze medal for this year by breaking the first nineteen birds in a twenty bird match.

Mt. Joy Picnic.

The postponed Mt. Joy community picnic will be held at Two Taverns on Saturday, August 23, when these speakers will be on the program: General Willis J. Hulings, Pennsylvania congressman; M. Clyde Kelley, one of the most active House members on the effort to reduce the high cost of living; and Edward J. Ward, of the Bureau of Education.

The progressive people of Mt. Joy want a consolidated school, one large building to accommodate all the children of the township, about 400 children, a graded school, and the speakers will tell the Mt. Joy people the great advantages such a school will give.

Successful Peace Celebration.

Ancient St. Ignatius Church in Buchanan Valley, Adams county, whose history dates back more than a century, on last Friday, August 15, celebrated a field mass in celebration of peace. The affair was under the general direction of the Knights of Columbus, and large delegations were present from Shamokin, Harrisburg, York, Hanover and McSherrystown. The church, one of the oldest in that section, is located in the beautiful mountain section of the western part of Adams county, and the mass was celebrated by the present rector, Rev. Will W. Whalen. It was fixed for August 15, because of the religious festival of the Assumption and included the service of thanksgiving.

Afterward the knights had charge of the events of the day, which had been advertised far and wide as one of "innocent religious dissipation." The religious service was followed by an old fashioned country picnic and the mountain section, which from year to year entertains large crowds, recorded one of the greatest assemblages it has seen. The mass was celebrated under the huge oak trees in the grove about the church, and the scene of the hundreds of devout persons kneeling was very impressive.

FAMED NEW ENGLAND FAMILY

Many Distinguished Citizens Among the Hanks of the Town of Mansfield, Conn.

At the recent celebration at Mansfield, Conn., of the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Hanks, the fact was brought out that the Hanks family has long been known for its ingenuity. The first town clock known in this country was made on Hanks hill by Benjamin Hanks and was placed in the Old Dutch church in New York city in 1780. The first brass cannon and first bell in America were also cast on Hanks hill.

Not only this, but the first silk mill erected in the United States, in 1810, still remains on the old hill. The grandfather of Henry W. Hanks, who was Rodney Hanks, was the first silk manufacturer in America. The latter's son, George R., father of Henry, continued in the business. All about the old town are evidences of a famous experiment in raising cocoons for the industry, in the shape of stray mulberry trees which have survived the severe New England winters.

Another interesting fact brought out at the celebration was that, although Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hanks have five children and four grandchildren, during the fifty years of their married life there has never been a death in the family. When a boy, Henry Hanks went with his parents to Illinois, where they ran a ranch and conducted a grocery store in the years between 1858 and 1867, moving back to the ancestral acres during the latter year.—New York World.

SARDINIA LIVES IN THE PAST

Hand Sickles and Wooden Plows Drawn by Oxen Are Still in Use on the Island.

Relics of Biblical pastoral life, plowing with wooden hooks drawn by oxen, reaping by the most primitive implements and other occupations of the nomadic peoples of antiquity remain the manner of living today in Sardinia, according to Dr. Alfred P. Dennis, commercial attaché of the United States embassy at Rome, who has just returned from the island after making an exhaustive study into traditional habits.

"Sardinians present a living picture of the remote past which has been stereotyped and handed down from antiquity," said Doctor Dennis. "Water wheels with earthen buckets, wooden plows drawn by oxen, the scythe and the sickle still in use in reaping vast fields—nomadic occupations unchanged since the days of the Aryan dispersion—tribal costumes as gay and grotesque as the trappings of the medieval pageant—all reproduced in the veriest similitude the archaic life of bygone ages."

WEAK KIDNEYS MAKE WEAK BODIES.

Kidney Diseases Cause Many Aches and Ills of Gettysburg People.

As one weak link weakens a chain, so may weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking-down.

Overwork, strains, colds and other causes injure the kidneys, and generally when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers.

Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills frequently come, and there is an ever-increasing tendency towards dropsy, gravel or fatal Bright's disease. When the kidneys fail there is no real help for the sufferer except kidney help.

Doan's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys. Gettysburg testimony is proof of their effectiveness.

Mrs. M. J. Hamilton, 9 Steinwehr Ave., says: "Backache gave me much misery and frequently I had dizzy spells and headaches. My kidney: acted irregularly, and this made me weak. I bought Doan's Kidney Pills at the People's Drug Store and they gave me excellent benefit. I am always pleased to speak highly of Doan's."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Hamilton had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

THE ABC OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

1. What is the League of Nations?

A. A union of the strongest civilized nations formed at the conclusion of the great war.

2. What is its object?

A. First, to promote the Peace of the World by agreeing not to resort to war. Second, to deal openly with each other, not by secret treaties. Third, to improve international law. Fourth, to co-operate in all matters of common concern.

3. Does it presume to end war?

A. No more than any government can end crime. It claims to reduce the liability of war.

4. What will be done to any nation that makes war?

A. It will be boycotted and otherwise penalized.

5. How else will the probability of war be lessened?

A. By voluntary, impartial and proportionate disarmament, by exchanging military information, by providing for arbitration, by preventing the nation's territorial integrity and by creating public opinion to see the end of war.

6. What else does the League propose to do for mankind?

A. (1) Secure fair treatment for labor.

(2) suppress the White Slave Traffic, the sale of dangerous drugs, and the traffic in War Munitions.

(3) control and prevent Disease.

(4) promote the work of the Red Cross, and

(5) establish International Bureaus for other causes that concern the human race.

7. Who are to be Charter Members of the League?

A. The United States of America, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, British Empire, Canada, Australia, South Africa, New Zealand, India, China, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Ecuador, France, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Italy, Japan, Liberia, Nicaragua, Panama, Peru, Poland, Portugal, Rumania, Serbia, Siam, Uruguay, and the following states which are invited to accede to the covenant: Argentina, Republic of Chile, Colombia, Denmark, Netherlands, Norway, Paraguay, Persia, Salvador, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Venezuela.

8. What other nations may join?

A. Any self-governing State which will agree to the rules of the League provided the League accepts it.

9. What Agencies will the League have?

A. (1) An Assembly, composed of representatives of all the member states.

(2) a Council of five.

(3) a Secretariat-General.

(4) a Mandatory Commission, to look after colonies, etc.

(5) a Permanent Commission, for military questions.

(6) various International Bureaus; such as the Postal Union, etc.

(7) Mandarates.

10. What is a Mandatory?

A. Some one nation designated by the League to attend to the welfare of "backward peoples residing in colonies of the Central Empires, or in territories taken from them." This is to be a "sacred trust" and in selecting a mandatory the wishes of the people of the area in question shall be the principal consideration.

11. Does the League mean a Super-nation?

A. No. It interferes in no way with any Nation's Sovereignty, except to limit its power to attack other nations.

12. Can any Nation withdraw when it wishes?

A. Yes. The League is Advisory and Co-operative, not coercive.

13. Does the League put Peace above Justice and National Honor?

A. No. It puts Reason before Violence.

14. Does not the League take away the Constitutional right of Congress to declare war?

A. No. The League can advise war; Congress alone can declare war.

15. Does it destroy the Monroe Doctrine?

A. Exactly the contrary. For the first time in history the other nations recognize the Monroe Doctrine; and extend it to all the world.

16. Does it not interfere with Treaty Making Powers of the United States?

A. No. It is a Treaty. We can make any Treaty we please.

17. Would we have had the Great War if we had had this League?

A. No. That War cost the world over 7,000,000 lives and 200,000,000,000 dollars.

18. Of what importance is the League?

A. It is the greatest deed of mankind in the history of the world.

19. Has not anyone a right to object to the League?

A. Yes. This is a free country. Any one has a right to any opinion he chooses.

20. Why is the League so bitterly opposed by a few?

A. Because, unfortunately, any Treaty or League must be made by the President, and a President is chosen by a political party and many members of the opposing party think they must destroy whatever he does.

MORAN GRABS STALLINGS' 'MIRACLE MAN' HALO

Pat Moran has been vindicated. Let out as manager of the Philadelphia Nationals—after having won a pennant—Moran was in the late spring made manager of the lowly Cincinnati Reds. When his team got away to a good start the fans said "Lucky" but when his team took the Giants to a merry trouncing last week and climbed into first place fans were aware that a new "miracle man" had arrived in baseball. Here is Moran, his wife and young Patrick, the greatest fan of 'em all.

RATIFY TREATY OF PEACE.

trouble is hers anyhow. And the unanimous vote of the council is only advice in any case.

Congress Not Hampered.

"Each government is free to reject it if it pleases. Nothing could have been made more clear to the conference than the right of our Congress under our constitution to exercise its independence in all matters of peace and war. No attempt was made to question or limit that right. The United States will, indeed, undertake under Article X to 'respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of the league,' and that engagement constitutes a very grave and solemn obligation. But it is a moral, not a legal obligation, and leaves our Congress absolutely free to put its own interpretation upon it in all cases that call for action. It is binding in conscience only, not in law.

"Article X seems to me to constitute the very backbone of the whole covenant. Without it the league would hardly be more than an influential debating society.

"It has several times been suggested, in public debate and in private conference, that interpretations of the sense in which the United States accepts the engagements of the covenant should be embodied in the instrument of ratification.

"There can be no reasonable objection to such interpretation accompanying the act of ratification provided they do not form a part of the ratification itself. Most of the interpretations which have been suggested to me embody what seems to me the plain meaning of the instrument itself. But if such interpretation should constitute a part of the formal resolution of ratification long delays would be inevitable consequence inasmuch as all the many governments concerned would have to accept, in effect the language of the Senate as the language of the Senate before ratification would be complete.

Reservations Dangerous.

"The assent of the German assembly at Weimar would have to be obtained, among the rest, and I must frankly say that I could only with the greatest reluctance approach that assembly for permission to read the treaty as we understand it, and as those who framed it quite certainly understood it. If the United States were to qualify the document in any way, moreover, I am confident from what I know of the many conferences and debates which accompanied the formulation of the treaty that our example would immediately be followed in many quarters, in many instances with very serious reservations and that the meaning and operative force of the treaty would presently be clouded from one end of its clauses to the other.

"Pardon me, Mr. Chairman, if I have been entirely unreserved and plain spoken in speaking of the great matters we all have so much at heart. If excuse is needed I trust that the critical situation of affairs may serve as my justification. The issues that manifestly hang upon the conclusion of the Senate with regard to peace and upon the time of its action are so grave and so clearly insusceptible of being thrust on one side or postponed that I have felt it necessary in the public interest to make this urgent plea and to make it as simply and as unreservedly as possible.

Road Bids Asked for September 2.

The State Highway Department has announced that on September 2 bids will be opened for the construction of forty-seven miles of new highway in various parts of the State. With this mileage included, the State Highway Department has since the first of the year advertised for the construction of 707 miles of road. Among the bids asked for are: Adams County, Gettysburg, Routes 43 and 126—785 feet. Either bituminous surface course on concrete foundation and hillside vitrified base or one-course reinforced concrete.

Adams County, Butler Township, Route 4—23,246 feet, one-course reinforced concrete and hillside vitrified base.

Adams County, Tyrone and Straban, Route 123—13,755 feet, one-course reinforced concrete.

The construction planned for Adams County is in Gettysburg borough, where improvements are needed on the Lincoln Highway; in Butler township, near Biglerville, on the road connecting Carlisle and Gettysburg; and in Tyrone and Straban townships on the highway connecting Gettysburg and Harrisburg.

The two bids last asked for are relettings, the first bids being higher than Department was willing to accept.

Teachers' Assembly Aug. 26th.

The annual sessions of the Summer Teachers' Assembly will be held Tuesday morning, Aug. 26, at nine o'clock in the High School building. The purpose of the gathering of the county teachers is to discuss the policies to be followed during the coming year. Addresses by several

The last day to be assessed in boroughs and townships for the November election are Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 2 and 3 and the assessors will then sit at the polling places. The last day to pay tax to qualify for the November election will be Saturday, Oct. 4.

IMPORTANT TO SERVICE MEN.

Under the act passed by the Legislature last spring soldiers, sailors or marines, who have not been assessed in the regular way, may pay a tax of ten cents to the tax collector and enroll on that receipt, thus becoming eligible to vote at the primary and fall election.

Soldiers, sailors or marines, who were discharged from the service subsequent to July 16, the last enrollment day, may also pay this ten cent tax and vote, under this act. Discharged service men, who were dismissed from the service prior to July 16 and who have not qualified as voters may be assessed on September 3.

Rural Carriers to Meet.

A meeting of the rural carriers of Adams county will be held at the Eagle Hotel, Gettysburg, on Saturday evening, August 23, to discuss several communications recently received from the joint congressional commission that has recently been created to investigate salaries of postal employees and recommend suitable adjustments.

Questionnaires will be distributed to all postal employees by this commission in order to secure the desired data and information. Copies of the questionnaires that will be sent to all rural carriers have been received by district, and the meeting in Gettysburg will discuss ways and means of systematizing the testimony to be submitted by the carriers.

One of the most serious difficulties experienced by the rural carriers is the inability to secure properly qualified substitute carriers to take their places while off duty. The reason for this is because substitutes are shown no preference in filling vacancies that occur on these routes, thus holding no incentive for men and women to serve as substitutes.

An effort will be made to secure preference for the substitute carriers, as well as to secure better salaries for them. The joint commission has announced that it will receive testimony from substitutes, and every substitute carrier in the district should also be present at these meetings.

This congressional district comprises the largest local association of rural carriers in the United States and the work of this association usually forms a criterion for other counties and districts to emulate. The creation of this joint salary commission has given organization work a decided boost, and the local organization is nearly 100 per cent in point of membership.

WORK AND SAVE IS REMEDY FOR HIGH PRICE EPIDEMIC

Federal Reserve Board Tells U. S.
Senate How Thrift Will Bring Relief.

Washington, Aug. 20.—"To work and save" is the remedy for the increasing cost of living pointed out recently by the Federal Reserve Board.

In reply to an inquiry from the Senate Banking Committee asking if it was advisable to attempt contraction of currency by legislation in the hope of reducing prices, Governor Harding wrote Chairman McLean that the growth in the volume of circulating notes was the effect and not the cause of advancing wages and prices, and that the war period of finance would not be over until government obligations, now carried by the banks are absorbed through the actual savings of the people.

Strong censure of strikes and extravagance was implied in Mr. Harding's letter, which did not, however, undertake to blame any one section of the population, but referred to the nation as a whole, especially to the relation of economies practiced during the war and the purchase now of non-essential articles by persons enjoying large incomes for the first time.

"The Federal Reserve Board believes that any currency legislation at this time is unnecessary and undesirable," Mr. Harding wrote, "and would suggest that the remedy for the present situation is to work and to save,
to work regularly and efficiently, in

SAVINGS STAMP SALES INCREASE IN JULY

Report Just Issued Shows Fine Record For Third Federal Reserve District.

New vigor has been put into the Thrift Movement throughout the Third Federal Reserve District despite the hot summer weather experienced last month. Figures showing the sales of Government Thrift and Savings
Stamps in Eastern Pennsylvania,
Southern New Jersey and Delaware
during the two weeks ending July 26th have been issued by the Savings-
Division of the War Loan Organization.

As an example of how individual districts are booming Thrift an average of 22 cents for every man, woman and child in Sullivan County, Pennsylvania, was invested in Savings Stamps during the two weeks. Bradford, Clinton and Montour Counties in Pennsylvania, and Camden County, in New Jersey, invested 8 cents in these securities for every inhabitant.
There are twelve counties in the district which have invested over a dollar for every resident so far this year in the safest security in the world.

The table below shows the standing of the counties in the Third Federal District for the two weeks ending July 26th. Read carefully and see where your county stands.

86 SIMON SHOWS PA THE WAY TO DO IT

The Golden Barrier

By A. W. PEACH

From his window overlooking the village square, Attorney John Stephens had seen the springs of 40 years ago, the same as when the gray hairs left after the first of the snows. He was the only one in the town, and the secret of his life was hidden in his white hair. He knew the stories of the lives of his people, and their parents were his.

So, when he saw a dapper, stylish, polished man come up the street from the station he became suspicious, knowing the type that spread trouble all over the town. He saw the man was coming to the office.

The man, who the lawyer could not see, and who stared his indignation, and who changed his plans to see the lawyer, was the man who made the old attorney stare.

"What do you want in return for my salary?" Stephens asked.

"With assurance the other explained, and Stephens, old in the ways of men, and the lawyer.

"Mr. Adams," the old lawyer said quietly, "I have read that in your city there is a firm that offered to sell post-boxes, and the proposition you have is worse than that. You should be jailed for representing it. My advice to you is to go on—leave the people here alone. You will bring nothing but ruin."

The other smiled. "Sorry, but I can't accept your invitation. I have other business here. In fact, I was asked to come."

Stood in Thought.

One door which was the sign, "William Joslyn." With a grunt of disgust the lawyer leaned back.

"So Will is after another scheme to get rich fast," he said to himself, and lapsed into musing.

The romance of the village was centered in William Joslyn and Emma Adams. Emma had inherited the wealth of her father and lived in the old mansion on the hill. William had loved her, and still did; and she loved him—of that the old attorney was certain.

The one thing that stood between Will and her was her money. Whether she knew that or not, Stephens did not know. He sighed over the matter, had chatted with William, but that firm, quiet, old-fashioned and set individual could not see how he could live upon his wife's money and keep his own respect, and he had little money of his own.

Now, so the lawyer mused, he was probably going into a get-rich-quick scheme to get the money he wanted in order to save the right to speak to Emma.

That evening he met the calm-faced, patient Joslyn and warned him against investing in the Starr Investment company. Joslyn thanked him for his advice, and then went on to say that he had invested in it—all he had.

"You stand to lose every cent of it," the lawyer said.

"I stand to win, too. I am tired of waiting for my ship. I am going out to meet it," was the quiet answer.

"Tired of waiting," the lawyer said to himself as he went to his office for his evening smoke. "He'll have a longer wait still."

Three months went by, and then came the shock. He discovered that there was a rumor around the village that Emma had invested all her fortune in the Starr company. The old lawyer, getting the rumor straight, immediately set out for the Adams home.

Like some picture of other days come to life she came to meet him, as simple, honest and beautiful as one of her roses.

He asked her anxiously about the situation—whether it was true that she had invested in the firm. She nodded. Stephens looked at her in despair and wrath. "Miss Adams, your father and my father trusted me. Why did you not come to me for advice? That firm is a gang of crooks operating within the law and just a statute or two out of jail. You will lose every cent—and I know it."

She was smiling into her lawyer's eyes, and she said simply, "I am not worrying."

He stared at her, wondering, but when he was on the way home he guessed the reason behind her madness.

"Of all wild dreams of foolish hearts in love! She wants to lose the money—that chunk of a Puritan Joslyn will get rich, so he can, has invested in the same crazy scheme—good heavens!" the angry lawyer muttered to himself.

Once more in his office, he slammed down his hat and stood in thought—to be aroused by his telephone. He answered it and heard Miss Emma's sweet voice say, an odd note of pleasure in it. "Dear old friend, I just got my mail; and they write me that for several reasons the investment failed and my money is gone."

He dropped the receiver with a groan. "And you want me to get the money back?"

To plan was to act; and the evening train carried the old lawyer to the city miles away. The next morning he was hot on the trail of the Starr investment company.

He found them, and grimly held on until he was ushered into the splendid private office of Amiens, who greeted him with the same smooth manner as months ago in the office in the village.

Swiftly the old attorney told his errand and his purpose—to save for Miss Emma Adams the fortune her father had won by hard toil; and as quietly as ever the lawyer spoke the promoter explained why the money could not be reached.

Stephen rose, his white hair ruffled, his eyes aflame, knowing himself defeated. "You and your kind shielded by the law though you are, should be hanged! You—you—"

"Wait," said the other. "We have some sentiment sir, at least. I was in love once myself. Besides, our business is a big one."

The lawyer stood, puzzled by the words, and watching the white fingers searching through some papers.

"What we have done, my dear sir, is so to arrange matters that, in a word, the money Miss Emma invested with us is credited to the account of Mr. Joslyn, and here is the certified check we are sending Mr. Joslyn. You see, there was a bit of romance in my own life, and I heard the story of Emma and Will while in your pleasant village, and after verifying facts, I thought we might do this. I imagine when the facts come out, there will be a marriage in your town. William's investment succeeded, Emma's failed. You get the idea? And now, would you care to act for us in your village?"

The old lawyer looked into the smiling, inscrutable face. "Act for you? Never! But I'll take your case on the last judgment day! Good day!"

HONEST PEOPLE IN MAJORITY

Experiment Made by New York Newspaper Would Seem to Prove Fact Beyond Dispute.

A widely known New York newspaper some time ago had one of its representatives take twelve pocketbooks, each containing a nominal sum of money, some checks that were to all appearances perfectly good, a few papers of legal nature, apparently valuable, and the address of the owner. At different sections of the city, including the Bowery, the East side, the lower West side, business localities, residential sections; all kinds were included—he would slip one of these purses out of his pocket and walk briskly along about his business.

Everywhere he went, someone would either pick the purse up or call his attention to it, but by perseverance he succeeded in "losing" the entire twelve without being noticed.

During the next week nine of the twelve were mailed to him—contents intact! Yet some of us immediately mistrust a man who kicks about a balance of $4.50.—From System.

Heathenism in Lithuania.

It is maintained that in certain parts of Lithuania, in isolated corners and secretly, the old rites of the heathen cult are observed even today. Almost every piece of furniture is beautifully ornate. The wood carving of the peasants is of marvelous delicacy and the gift they have for colors has already been remarked by the whole artistic world. In the long winter months such works are carried out by each member of the family, and reputations spread there as rapidly as elsewhere. The ability and the industry of the Lithuanians fostered the following proverb: "A Lithuanian goes into the forest leading his horse and returns from there with the horse harnessed to a carriage."

Had Long Sitting at Whist.

The curious fascination cards possess for their devotees is illustrated by the following story of Lord Granville, at the time England's ambassador to France: One afternoon, when he was about to return to Paris, he repaired to Graham's to have a farewell game of whist, ordering his carriage to be at the door at 4. When it arrived he was much too deep in the game to be disturbed. At 10 o'clock he sent out word that he was not ready and that the horses had better be changed. Six hours later the same message was sent out, and twice more the waiting horses were changed before he consented to leave the table, after losing £10,000.

Ticklish Bit of Tunneling.

A very interesting bit of tunneling was recently done on the Fourteenth street tunnel under the East river, New York. The heading was being run in rock, and at one point test holes showed a thickness of only eight inches of sound dry rock above the line along which the top of the tunnel was to run. As the tunnel was being driven without the use of compressed air it was decided to drop the upper heading four feet until this thin cover of rock was passed. The cast iron lining was set in place at each side of this section and then the rock was removed very carefully by using a great many holes each loaded with about one-eighth of a stick of dynamite. As each bit of rock was removed the arch of the tunnel lining was set in place. By this means the dangerous section was tunneled without breaking through the thin shell.—Scientific American.

His Desire.

Last autumn Roland was much to do with his new teacher, and tried to prove his affection by doing many errands for her. One of them was the hauling of the fertilizer from his father's barn to her flower garden.

This spring Roland became interested in a victory garden and started one. One day he journeyed to the home of his last term teacher, told her of his garden and then ended the conversation with, "Do you remember that fertilizer I gave you last fall? Well, I'd like to have it back now for my own garden."

Ingenious Automobile Thief.

An automobile owner at Hallowell, leaving his car, hitched it to a tree by winding a chain around one of the wheels of the machine and fastening the end of the chain around a tree. An automobile thief noticed the car, loosened the wheel which was chained to the tree, took it off, and then removing the extra wheel from the rear of the car put it on in the place of the wheel which had been dropped off and drove away, leaving the single wheel chained to the tree.

Best of Rural Roads.

More Daisy Tread Tires are sold to farmers than any of our other treads," said C. A. Stoner, local Portage representative at Gettysburg, opposite the Post Office.

"They have found," he continued, "that the many sharp angles and deep angles and deep hollows of the Daisy design grip the road firmly. It is an anti-skid design that really safeguards against side-slipping and skidding."

"We find, too," he said, "that the rural people, who are necessarily far from a tire repair shop most of the time, appreciate the small amount of trouble Portage Tires give. A customer who was in the other day remarked that when he put on a new Portage he usually forgot all about it for the next six or seven thousand miles. Our tires are guaranteed for 6,000 and 7,500 miles, but users tell us they generally get far more than the guaranteed service."
